School communities are full of people who have both the ability and desire to lead. Some lead without knowing it. Most lead without the recognition they deserve.

Lead From Where You Are offers a down-to-earth, implementable approach to rethink how we build leadership and community in schools.

Author Dr. Joe Sanfelippo, a veteran principal and superintendent, argues that our focus must be on the growing leadership potential all across the community in schools from teachers to staff.

Let's build a sense of intention and connection together
